Will Tinley Park Get New School?

All the decks have been cleared for action for the big new school election to be held at Tinley Park Saturday evening of this week. Great interest has been aroused, and a big vote is expected to be cast. From present indications, it is said it looks as tho the proposition would go over big. Quite a little opposition is being registered against the new school, but it is said that those in favor of the proposition are in the majority.

It is pointed out that a new school will increase property values, and will be a big boon to the village, not only for now, but for generations to come, as the new school is to be built for the future needs.

A lot of missionary work is being done by Dr. C. Scheer, member of the board of education. A house-to-house canvass has been made, and the parents have been urged to come out and vote.

Mokena Man Buys Auto With Real Interesting History

Last Monday, while Albert Hensch, of Hentsch Bros. garage of Mokena, was in the office of the Oldsmobile Co. in Chicago, a call came in for an appraiser to be sent to Indiana to appraise a car which was in a wreck. As no appraiser was in the office, Mr. Hensch was sent to Robey, Ind. Arriving there, he found that a Buick car had skidded and struck a telephone post and was slightly damaged.

He found that the owner was Herman Weitendorf, son of the German Ambassador to the United States. The car in question has been kept in a garage in Washington, where ex-President Wilson has his car. Mr. Hensch purchased the damaged Buick, and sold Mr. Weitendorf another car. The Buick has been brought to the Hentsch Bros. garage at Mokena.

Oak Forest P. O. And Depot Robbed

The Oak Forest postoffice and depot, which are located in one building, was entered by burglars Sunday night. The loot was not much, $14 in stamps being stolen from the postoffice and some change from the depot. The burglars came near being caught, as the midnight train west pulled in, but they got away, and no trace of them has been found.

The same night a poolroom was broken into at Washington Heights.

Mokena Man Wins Suit Against Joliet Auto Tire Firm

Clarence Cleveland of Mokena was awarded a verdict of $45 Thursday by a jury in the Circuit court at Joliet in his suit against Hauck & Kemp of Joliet.

According to the testimony, Mr. Cleveland purchased a Gates half sole, a covering which is cemented over a worn tire, from Hauck & Kemp of Joliet, which the latter firm guaranteed for 5,000 miles. Mr. Hauck told Mr. Cleveland that if he permitted him to apply on his worn tire, a Gates half sole, it would be as good as new. Mr. Cleveland then agreed, and the half sole was put on a worn tire. Mr. Cleveland says he had only a few miles of wear of the tire when it blew out. A few months later he went to Hauck & Kemp for an adjustment. They told him that they had guaranteed only the half sole for 5,000 miles, and this was the written guarantee of the Gates firm. Mr. Cleveland, however, claimed the tire as rebuilt was guaranteed. Mr. Hauck refused to return to Mr. Cleveland the $37.75 he had paid for the application of the half sole. Mr. Cleveland then left the tire in the shop of Hauck & Kemp, and started suit.

This is a very interesting case in this, that the Gates Half Sole Company's printed guarantees were displayed in the shop of Hauck & Kemp, but Mr. Cleveland's contention was adopted by the jury. Attorney A. H. Krusemark represented Mr. Cleveland, and Walters & Dibell were counsel for Hauck & Kemp.

"Shippers Fever" Afflicts New Lenox Herds; Danger Past

A new illness among cattle has broken out in New Lenox township. The malady is known as "shippers' fever," and is said to break out quite commonly among cattle in the Chicago stockyards.

Several herds of feeding cattle on the farms of George L. Francis and Harlow G. Francis were vaccinated last week in an effort to check the spread of the disease.

The illness, according to Dr. C. Howard Spangler, is traced to an infection common among cattle received at the stockyards in Chicago.

On the farm of George L. Francis, 71 head of cattle were vaccinated. On the farm of Harlow G. Francis 50 head of cattle were also vaccinated, and it is now believed that the illness has been entirely eliminated. Two cows are said to have died of the disease.

You Bet Country Merchants Can Run Page Advs.

The News-Bulletin of last week carried a seven-column display advertisement of B. Balchowsky & Sons of Frankfort advertising their 15th annual clearance sale, now on.

This is just an illustration of what an enterprising and progressive firm like B. Balchowsky & Sons can do when it comes to local newspaper advertising. This firm is a strong believer in advertising, and they have found that it has paid them well.

Of course we do not expect all the local merchants to run full page ads., but they surely ought to advertise more than they are doing, for it is to their advantage to do so. Many a country merchant has the mistaken idea that he is just donating something when he takes space in the local paper. He feels that he is just handing the editor a gift of a few dollars to save him from going "busted," whereas the fact of the matter is, advertising should be considered as much of the merchant's business as the telephone and electric light, for advertising is just as necessary to a successful business. Every city store thinks so, and makes an advertising budget. A country store must do the same if the merchant has any desire to be a "live wire." Of course the dead ones and would-be are not interested in advertising, and therefore do not amount to a row of pins.

How To Escape Pneumonia

Here are some reasonable suggestions, which, if followed, will help you to escape pneumonia:

Keep your feet dry and warm.

Be careful in your habits of living as to diet and proper rest.

Avoid undue and prolonged exposure to wet and cold.

Get as much exercise in the open air as you can.

Dress so that you will feel comfortable in the house and equally as comfortable when out of doors in a lower temperature.

Keep your living rooms at a temperature not exceeding 70 degrees. For people in normal health and properly clad 68 degrees is better.

Do not cough or sneeze in anyone's face, or allow others to cough or sneeze in your immediate presence.

Don't spit in public places. Finally, remember that pneumonia is highly contagious, and that there are persons who are carriers, and that when they sneeze or cough openly in the air close to you, you are in danger of becoming infected.

By observing these suggestions, you can greatly lessen your chances of "catching" pneumonia, and be more likely to get through the winter without needing the services of the undertaker.

Tinley Bank Officer Birthday Honored

George Schreiber, well known Tinley Park shoe man, and vice-president of the Bremen State Bank, was very pleasantly surprised, Sunday night, in honor of his 63rd birthday anniversary, when the bank officials and other friends held a surprise party at his home in honor of the occasion. The evening hours passed away too quickly, and the guests were sorry when the midnight hour approached and they had to leave. All declared they had a real jolly good time. A sumptuous luncheon was served.

Mrs. Schreiber had arranged for the party, and invited the guests. She worked everything so nicely that Mr. Schreiber had no idea what was in store for him. His many friends congratulate him and wish him many more such occasions.

Were They Chicken Thieves?

Albert Marti, residing northwest of Mokena, reports that on Saturday night, about 12:30 o'clock, he heard his dog bark, and upon looking out the window, saw an auto in the yard. Before he could call out to ask who they were, the drivers hurried out of the yard and down the road. Mr. Marti is rather puzzled as to whether they were chicken thieves or tourists who had lost their way. One thing, tho, seems odd—that anyone would be driving on that road at that time of the night.

Miss Lulu Bett

"SEÑORA, ALLOW ME!"

SYNOPSIS.—General factotum in the house of her sister Ina, wife of Herbert Deacon, in the small town of Warbleton, Lulu Bett leads a dull, cramped existence, with which she is constantly at enmity, though apparently satisfied with her lot. To Mr. Deacon comes Bobby Larkin, recently graduated high-school youth, secretly enamored of Deacon's elder daughter, Diana, an applicant for a "job" around the Deacon house. He is engaged. The family is excited over the news of an approaching visit from Deacon's brother Ninian, whom he had not seen for many years. Deacon jokes with Lulu, with subtle meaning, concerning the coming meeting. Lulu is interested and speculative, meanwhile watching with something like envy the boy-and-girl love-making of Bobby and Diana. Unexpectedly, Ninian arrives. This he becomes acquainted with Lulu first and in a measure understands her position in the house. To Lulu, Ninian is a much-traveled man of the world, and even the slight interest which he takes in her is appreciated, because it is something new in her life. And Ninian appears to like Lulu.

II—Continued.

The words give no conception of their effect, spoken thus. For there in Warbleton these words are not commonplace. In Warbleton, Europe is never so casually spoken of. "Take a trip abroad" is the phrase, or "Go to Europe" at the very least, and both with empressment. Dwight had some where noted and deliberately picked up that "other side" effect, and his Ina knew this, and was proud. Her covert glance about pensively covered her soft triumph.

Mrs. Bett, her arm still circling the child Monona, now made her first observation.

"Pity not to have went while the going was good," she said, and said no more.

Nobody knew quite what she meant, and everybody hoped for the best. But Ina frowned. Mamma did these things occasionally when there was company, and she dared. She never sauced Dwight in private. And it wasn't fair, it wasn't fair—

The dishes were washed. Lulu had washed them at breakfast speed—she could not, or would not, have told why. But no sooner were they finished and set away than Lulu had been attacked by an unconquerable inhibition. And instead of going to the parlor, she sat down by the kitchen window. She was in her cholly gown, with her cameo pin and her string of coral.

Laughter from the parlor mingled with the laughter of Di and Jenny upstairs. Lulu was now rather shy of Di. A night or two before, coming home with "extra" cream, she had gone round to the side door and had come full upon Di and Bobby, seated on the steps. And Di was saying:

"Well, if I marry you, you've simply got to be a great man. I could never marry just anybody. I'd smother."

Lulu had heard, stricken. She passed them by, responding only faintly to their greeting. Di was far less taken aback than Lulu.

Later Di had said to Lulu: "I s'pose you heard what we were saying."

Lulu, much shaken, had withdrawn from the whole matter by a flat "no."

And Instead of Going to the Parlor
She Sat Down by the Kitchen Window.

"Because," she said to herself, "I couldn't have heard right."

But since then she had looked at Di as if Di were some one else. Had not Lulu taught her to make buttonholes and to hem—oh, no! Lulu could not have heard properly.

"Everybody's got somebody to be nice to them," she thought now, sitting by the kitchen window, adult yet Cinderella.

She thought that some one would come for her—her mother or even Ina. Perhaps they would send Monona. She waited at first hopefully, then resentfully. The gray rain wrapped the air.

"Nobody cares what becomes of me after they're fed," she thought, and derived an obscure satisfaction from her phrasing, and thought it again.

Ninian Deacon came into the kitchen.

Her first impression was that he had come to see whether the dog had been fed.

"I fed him," she said, and wished that she had been busy when Ninian entered.

"Who, me?" he asked. "You did that all right. Say, why in time don't you come in the other room?"

"Oh, I don't know."

"Well, neither do I. I've kept thinking, 'Why don't she come along?' Then I remembered the dishes." He glanced about. "I come to help wipe dishes."

"Oh!" she laughed so delicately, so delightfully, one wondered where she got it. "They're washed—" she caught herself at "long ago."

"Well then, what are you doing here?"

"Resting."

"Rest in there. He bowed, crooked his arm. "Senora," he said—his Spanish matched his other assimilations of travel—"Senora, allow me."

Lulu rose. On his arm she entered the parlor. Dwight was narrating and did not observe that entrance. To the Plows it was sufficiently normal. But Ina looked up and said:

"Well!"—in two notes, descending, curving.

Lulu did not look at her. Lulu sat in a low rocker. Her starched white skirt, throwing her cholly in ugly lines, revealed a peeping rim of white embroidery. Her lace front wrinkled when she sat, and perpetually she adjusted it. She curled her feet side-wise beneath her chair, her long wrists and veined hands lay along her lap in no relation to her. She was tense. She rocked.

When Dwight had finished his narration, there was a pause, broken at last by Mrs. Bett.

"You tell that better than you used to when you started in telling it," she observed. "You got in some things I guess you used to clean forget about. Monona, get off my rocker."

Monona made a little whimpering sound, in pretense to tears. Ina said, "Darling—quiet!"—chin a little lifted, lower lip revealing lower teeth for the word's completion; and she held it.

The Plows were asking something about Mexico. Dwight was wondering if it would let up raining at all. Di and Jenny came whispering into the room. But all these distractions Ninian Deacon swept aside.

"Miss Lulu," he said, "I wanted you to hear about my trip up the Amazon, because I knew how interested you are in travels."

He talked, according to his lights, about the Amazon. But the person who most enjoyed the recital could not afterward have told two words that he said. Lulu kept the position which she had taken at first, and she dare not change. She saw the blood in the veins of her hands and wanted to hide them. She wondered if she might fold her arms, or have one hand to support her chin, gave it all up and sat motionless, save for the rocking.

Then she forgot everything. For the first time in years some one was talking and looking not only at Ina and Dwight and their guests, but at her.

III.

June.

On a June morning Dwight Herbert Deacon looked at the sky, and said with his manner of originating it:

"How about a picnic this afternoon?"

Ina, with her blank, upward look, exclaimed: "Today?"

"First class day, it looks like to me."

Come to think of it, Ina didn't know that there was anything to prevent, but mercy, Herbert was so sudden. Lulu began to recite the resources of the house for a lunch. Meanwhile, since the first mention of picnic, the child Monona had been dancing stiffly about the room, knees stiff, elbows stiff, shoulders immovable, her straight hair flapping about her face. The sad dance of the child who cannot dance because she never has danced. Di gave a conservative assent—she was at that age—and then took advantage of the family softness incident to a guest and demanded that Bobby go too. Ina hesitated, partly because she always hesitated, partly because she was tribal in the extreme. "Just our little family and Uncle Ninian would have been so nice," she sighed, with her consent.

When, at six o'clock, Ina and Dwight and Ninian assembled on the porch and Lulu came out with the basket, it was seen that she was in a blue cotton house gown.

"Look here," said Ninian, "aren't you going?"

"Me?" said Lulu. "Oh, no."

"Why not?"
"Oh, I haven't been to a picnic since I can remember."

"But why not?"

"Oh, I never think of such a thing."

Ninian waited for the family to speak. They did speak. Dwight said:

"Lulu's a regular home body."

And Ina advanced kindly with:

"Come with us, Lulu, if you like."

"No," said Lulu, and flushed.

"Thank you," she added, formally.

Mrs. Bett's voice shrilled from within the house, startlingly close—just beyond the window blind, in fact:

"Go on, Lullie. It'll do you good. You mind me and go on."

"Well," said Ninian, "that's what I say. You hustle for your hat and you come along."

For the first time this course presented itself to Lulu as a possibility. She stared up at Ninian.

"You can slip on my linen duster, over," Ina said graciously.

"Your new one?" Dwight incredulously wished to know.

"Oh, no!" Ina laughed at the idea.

"The old one."

They were having to wait for Di in any case—they always had to wait for Di—and at last, hardly believing in her own motions. Lulu was running to make ready. Mrs. Bett hurried to help her, but she took down the wrong things and they were both irritated. Lulu reappeared in the linen duster and a wide hat. There had been no time to "tighten up" her hair; she was flushed at the adventure; she had never looked so well.

"Look Here," said Ninian, "Aren't you going?" "Me?" said Lulu.

"Oh, no."

They started. Lulu, falling in with Monona, heard for the first time in her life, the step of the pursuing male, choosing to walk beside her and the little girl. Oh, would Ina like that? And what did Lulu care what Ina liked? Monona, making a silly, semi-articulate observation, was enchanted to have Lulu burst into laughter and squeeze her hand.

Di contributed her bright presence, and Bobby Larkin appeared from nowhere, running, with a gigantic bag of fruit.

"Bullyfufah!" he shouted, and Lulu could have shouted with him.

She sought for some utterance. She wanted to talk with Ninian.

"I do hope we've brought sandwiches enough," was all that she could get to say.

They chose a spot, that is to say, Dwight Herbert chose a spot, across the river and up the shore where there was at that season a strip of warm beach. Dwight Herbert declared himself the bulwark of incomparable fires, and made a bad smudge. Ninian, who was a camper neither by birth nor by adoption, kept offering brightly to help, could think of nothing to do, and presently, bethinking himself of skipping stones, went and tried to skip them on the flowing river. Ina cut her hand opening the condensed milk and was obliged to sit under a tree and nurse the wound. Monona spilled all the salt and sought diligently to recover it. So Lulu did all the work. As for Di and Bobby, they had taken the pail and gone for water, discouraging her to the point of tears. But the two were gone for so long that, on their return, Dwight was hungry and cross and majestic.

"While I'm here, I'm going to take you and Ina and Dwight up to the city."

JESUS TEACHING HUMILITY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 14:1-14.
GOLDEN TEXT—God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.
—1 Peter 5:5.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—John 13:1-17; Phil. 2:5-11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Great Dinner.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Teaching Courtesy.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Spirit of Christian Service.

I. Jesus Dines With a Pharisee (v. 1).

Jesus entered freely into the common social customs of the day. We see Him at a wedding, a dinner party, in the home of sickness, and at a funeral. He was truly a man among men. He was unlike John the Baptist in this respect. The Christian's influence is best when mingling with his fellow-men in all right relations and positions in life, even though selfish and evil-minded persons are found among them. This does not mean that he should be a partaker of their evil deeds. Jesus in thus moving in all circles of human society showed the divine sympathy. While Jesus was in society he was not of it. So should the Christian be. Jesus was in a company outwardly courteous but inwardly hostile. Doubtless the motive of the invitation was to find an occasion against Him. This is implied in the statement "they watched Him."

II. Jesus Healing a Dropsical Man (vv. 2-6).

1. Why This Man Was Present (v. 2). There is no way of absolutely determining it, but likely it was part of a plot of the Pharisees to trap Jesus by getting Him to violate the Sabbath rules.

2. Jesus' Question (v. 3). Jesus' question was an answer to the thoughts of the lawyers and Pharisees who were watching Him, for they had not spoken. Before healing this man He submitted the case to their judgment. They were free on the Sabbath day to hold a feast where their selfish pride and vanity could be displayed, but they were horrified that a fellow-man should be healed on the Sabbath. They were silent because their consciences made them ashamed of their heartlessness.

3. Healing the Man (v. 4).

While they were in a state of embarrassment Jesus healed the man and let him go.

4. Jesus Rebuked Them (vv. 5, 6). He laid bare their hypocrisy by showing them that their willingness to show mercy to a beast on the Sabbath should induce them to regard as not sinful to relieve a human being of distress on the Sabbath. They were again silent, for they perceived their inconsistency and inhumanity.

III. Jesus Rebukes Selfish Ambition (vv. 7-10).

1. The Occasion (v. 7). He observed that the guests while taking their places at the table chose the best seats for themselves. This is still true of men and women. In the railway cars, hotels, street cars, etc., they scramble for the best places. In the homes even members of the same family will try to get the best food, etc.

2. Instruction Given (vv. 8-11).

When bidden to a feast, take the lowest place lest you suffer the humiliation of being asked to take a lower seat. This is more than a lesson on courtesy or table manners; it is a severe rebuke of that selfishness which fills the human heart, causing it to seek to be ministered to instead of ministering to others. Unselfishness will express itself in humbly taking the lowest place, esteeming others better than ourselves. The fundamental principle of the philosophy governing the moral world, Jesus declares to be: "Whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased, and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted."

IV. The True Motive in Deeds of Charity (vv. 12-14).

Jesus takes advantage of this social occasion to teach a great principle. The Jews, like many of the rich today, made social dinner occasions for display. They invited only those whose wealth would enable them to recompense them by inviting them in return. Jesus took note of the selfishness thus displayed and set forth to them the right principle, namely, that they should extend their hospitality to the poor and afflicted. All charitable deeds should be done with unselfish motives. Jesus assured them that compensation would be made at the resurrection of the just. This does not mean that friends and neighbors of certain rank should never exchange pleasant hospitalities. Wealth should be used to confer blessings upon the poor and needy instead of ministering to the pride and vanity of the possessor.

How Churches Grow.

Once there was a Chinese laundry. Then it became a store. Then it became a church. For ten years it served in this capacity, and from it has come a group of 47 communicants and 100 children who, this year, have acquired their own new building, St. Philip's chapel, New Orleans.

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

WESTERN CANADA for Big Wheat Crops

Canada is the world's greatest producer of wheat—second only to the United States—yet only about 12% of the tillable area has been worked. Yields of 40 bushels of wheat per acre are not uncommon. Cuts have given as high as 100 bushels per acre, while 40 to 50 bushels per acre are ordinary yields; barley and rye in like proportion. Cattle and horses thrive on the native grasses which grow abundantly and corn and sunflower culture are highly successful.

The Advent Into the Earth

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
Extension Department, Moody
Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—He said unto them, Ye are from beneath, I am from above.—John 8:23.

When Phillip invited Nathaniel to come and see Jesus, as Nathaniel understood it Jesus had come out of Nazareth. But the Gospel of John has great lessons in origins. It goes back of all the question of man shedding man's blood to the devil as "the murderer." It goes back of all power of a Pilate to crucify and records Jesus' words, "Thou couldst have no power at all against me except it were given thee from above." It goes back of Nazareth, back of Egypt, back of Bethlehem, back of Mary, and declares his words, "I am from above."

The event has been expressed with remarkable accuracy by our English phrase—The Advent. As he himself words it also, "I am come into the world." It is that he came out of "the above" into "the beneath." For one of us to have come out of the fruitfulness, the beauty, and the mild atmosphere of the tropics into the snows and shorn hills and orchards of the frigid zone is considered a great transition, but whose imagination is strong enough to picture the transition of the Savior of men from that which is included in that word "above" to this "beneath"?

Humanity has never been in that "above" realm. From our numbers some of the dear sainted ones have gone to be "with the Lord," but even that could never equal all that is meant when he says, "I am from above." He with whom we have to do as Savior and Lord has therefore experienced both spheres. If he had been only man then he could have said that the upper world was his native country, and it would have signified that there was where he belonged, but that he had made an advent into "the earth beneath" for some great purpose. As it is, however, "God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself." "God was manifest in the flesh." "The Word was made flesh." He is more than man. He knows both spheres perfectly.

That descending, that coming down of the "Son given," is more than a great stooping with a merciful reaching. He actually walked our earth. He took upon him "the likeness of sinful flesh." What reason for celebration here! If he had come as a guest what occasion it would reasonably offer for acclaim! This one from the Highest has arrived among the lowest! But he comes as both guest and host. He may visit at the home of Lazarus in Bethany, but he will be host to the wedding party at Cana. He may be guest at a Pharisee's house, but he will be saying, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden." If he had come as guest it would be cause for great celebration; what shall we say when lo, here He is both guest and host?

He speaks familiarly of both worlds. He can tell of the occupation of angels, of the foundation of the world, of the glory of God, and what he says about it all bears the impress of first-hand knowledge. Oh, there are some of those titles applied to him in the 9th chapter of Isaiah's prophecy that may be held in reserve for their full import until he appears in glory, but, that first one, "Wonderful," need not be held in reserve.

Saith He, "Ye are from beneath." We have the phrase, "going over the top," and it conveys a great event in the activities of brave men in war, but how far beneath is that "top." How far short of the top of things do even our best airships sail? We cannot qualify our nativity as we must the nativity of Jesus. We were born of the flesh, born in sin, and "are of the earth earthy." Our old homestead is in the place of the thorn and the thistle, the tears and the sighs, the guilt and the death. And this is the place to which He came. Out of that into this! Shall we hear it—"This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptance that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

"Oh, now we know why His early act was to grace a manger. Now it appears why He endured hunger and thirst, sighing, weeping, and death. They all belong to "the beneath." Now we know why He freely offered himself for us all.

Once you know Him as yours, it would seem almost as if you, too, had been above. So different is your relation to this world when your treasure is in that world! Celebrate! Indeed! Well may our hearts from their depths celebrate His so coming down to take us up.

Why God Sends Children.

God sends children for another purpose than merely to keep up the race—to enlarge our hearts, to make us unselfish, and full of kindly sympathies and affections; to give our souls higher aims, and to call out all our faculties to extended enterprise and exertion; to bring round our fireside bright faces and happy smiles, and loving, tender hearts. My soul blesses the great Father every day that He has gladdened the earth with little children.—Mary Howitt.

LOS ANGELES MAN SAYS IT NEVER FAILS

"Tanlac is my stand-by, and I wouldn't think of being without it. It has set me on my feet more than once when I had such bad spells of stomach trouble. I thought I couldn't get well." This emphatic statement was made recently by W. C. Wallace, 320 N. Normandie Place, Los Angeles, Calif.

"An acid stomach and indigestion caused me indescribable suffering for more than four years," he said. "Awful pains would strike me soon after eating, and I would be almost doubled up in agony. Often I had to take to my bed, and I would lose much weight with every spell. I was told I had ulcers, enlarged stomach and other ailments, but all my efforts to get relief failed. I kept getting worse, and figured I would have to get something to help me or I couldn't keep going much longer."

"I read in the papers where Tanlac was helping others with stomach troubles, so I began taking it. It never failed to straighten me out, and I gained back my lost weight, too. I am more grateful than I can say for the good this medicine has done me, and I do not hesitate to give it my fullest recommendation."

"Studying weather forecasts, that's how I land 'em." Thus one of the regular army's most proficient recruiters explain, the success which has made him one of the "aces" of Uncle Sam's recruiting forces.

When winter blasts blow around his "Uncle Sam Wants You" sign, the sergeant hangs out alluring pictures of a field artillery column at rest on the side of a Hawaiian island road shaded with palm trees. When the city sizzles in the summer he extracts from his supply of posters a persuading "Spend Your Summer in Cool Alaska With the Infantry" sign.

"And you ought to see 'em flock in," gloats the sergeant. "Give me a week of rain and I'll land 'em for my post on the Mexican border, 50 miles away from a river. Come around and see me this winter. I can fill a division for the Philippines any day there's snow on the ground. But Alaska or the Canadian border, not a chance!"

Time Saved by System.

In a report made to the house of representatives by the committee on coinage, weights and measures, which favored the adoption of the metric system by the government of the United States, it was pointed out that, according to estimates made by the bureau of education and others, two-thirds of a year would be saved by the adoption of the metric arithmetic. It is also averred, as a matter of evidence, that the metric system and its application to the solution of problems may be learned in one-tenth of the time required for gaining equal facility in the use of the English system of weights and measures.

FEMALE VICTIMS OF PLAGUE

Figures Show That Tuberculosis Is Spreading, Chiefly Among Women
Active in Industrial World.

The death rate from tuberculosis among women is on the increase. In spite of the increase in active cases among women the death rate for males is still higher than that for females by almost one-third. "The sudden influx of women into industry during the war may, in a measure, be responsible for this increase," says a statement from the National Tuberculosis association. "This does not mean that there is any real basis for the assertion that women are not as well fitted for industrial work as men are. It is a fact, however, that many women who work in industry also look after their household duties and bring up large families of children. Consequently, insufficient rest, improperly cooked food and lack of fresh air so undermine the constitution that they readily become victims of the tubercle bacillus."

A traveler, newly returned from Moscow, tells a pretty story in the columns of the London Morning Post of how he found himself in uncomfortable quarters, and decided to change a very small amount of English money into an unthinkable number of rubles, and buy a hotel. Here he lived in contentment for a fortnight. Leaving for home, he gave the hotel to the head waiter as a tip.

Odd African Tribe.

The El Molo ("Poor Devil") are a small and little-known tribe, dwelling on islands close to the east shore of Lake Rudolf, in East Africa. They are now a community of about 70 souls under the leadership of a blind chief.

They construct the poorest type of shelter from leaves of the Dom palm. Their sole food is fish, which they occasionally spear, but more often catch in coarse-meshed fiber nets; their only drink is the vile soda-impregnated water of the lake.

The El Molo are almost amphibious, and are apparently unable to go for more than an hour without water, for after that time their lips swell up and start bleeding. They have their own language.

LAST OBSTACLES TO LINKING CHICAGO WITH GULF REMOVED

Completion of Illinois Project Will Open Up 15,000 Miles of Waterways in Mississippi Basin.

People of the Middle West will soon see fulfilled the prophecies of Joliet, LaSalle and Father Marquette on waterway transportation.

The last of the obstructive, legislative and engineering problems in connection with the Lakes-to-the-Gulf canal have been overcome, and the $20,000,000 program which concerns chiefly the gap between Lockport and LaSalle is ready to start. Its completion will provide accommodation for 60,000,000 tons of freight traffic annually. It will link Chicago with the Mississippi river system, representing 15,000 miles of inland waterways, having direct connection with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and Louisville on the Ohio, Chattanooga and Nashville on the Tennessee and New Orleans and St. Louis on the Mississippi—as well as with Minneapolis and St. Paul through the upper Mississippi and with Kansas City when the Missouri river is improved. The work on the Missouri has already been authorized by the government.

Speaking before the Illinois Bankers' association recently, H. C. Gardner, chairman of the committee on waterways of the Chicago Association and river-canal distance, to be available we hope in the not distant future, 352 miles. You see the mileage ratio is much more favorable because the Illinois is much straighter than the Mississippi.

"Considering the all-water route between New Orleans and Chicago, we have total distance for barges 1,506 miles, against rail distance by Illinois Central of 922 miles, and the ratio almost exactly the same as between St. Louis and New Orleans. With the barge line between the last named cities a proved success, what more evidence is needed that the through route, Chicago to New Orleans, would be a success?"

"The Kansas City-Chicago water route via the Missouri-Mississippi and Illinois rivers, is to be considered. The short line rail distance is 451 miles against 726 miles all water, and the ratio almost exactly the same as the St. Louis-New Orleans route and the Chicago-New Orleans route. We have therefore the same logical reason for expecting the route will be successful.

"But we of Illinois have a still better reason for expecting success of the Chicago-New Orleans barge route, Gateway to Chicago Harbor With Which the Mississippi Basin Will Be Linked.

of Commerce and president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, stressed the importance of the Illinois waterway and gave interesting data on barge transportation. He said:

"Modern barge transportation is radically different from carriage by the old-fashioned river steamer; not only different in the type of craft used, but much cheaper per ton mile. A single power boat now takes several times as much tonnage, and both the power and labor expense are greatly cut. And the overhead is reduced, too, for a towboat and its complement of barges cost much less than would the number of old-style river steamers necessary to carry the same load.

As to cost per ton we feel encouraged. By rail St. Louis to New Orleans is 710 miles and by river 1,153 miles. Applying these distances and the eighty per cent water rate between the termini, it appears that the ton-mile rate may safely be in the ratio of one for water against two for the rail haul. And bear in mind the rail rate is low because it is by lines competing with barge service. Rail rates in the country are for great areas and hundreds and even thousands of points on a much higher plan.

"Considering in the same way our own Illinois case, we have rail distance, St. Louis to Chicago, 294 miles, even with the handicap of a rail haul to and from St. Louis and to and from Cairo. The Chicago industrial and commercial centers find the present barge line profitable to the shipper, and needs no specially sharp pencil to figure that there would be a better ratio of saving if we could but have the St. Louis-Chicago link completed, and in addition a transfer would be saved, which spells not only money, but time and reduced damage to the freight."

To complete the Lockport-LaSalle stretch of the waterway, five locks of a length of 600 feet and a width of 110 feet will be required. This will create a lockage of 9,000 tons, equal to thirteen average freight trainloads.

Work on one of the locks—that at Marseilles—already 75 per cent completed and the deepening of the Illinois river and drainage canal, the main channel of which extends from the Chicago river at Robey street to the Illinois and Michigan canal basin in the Desplaines river at Joliet, is in progress.

Because of the dam at Marseilles it was necessary to dig a new channel south of the Illinois river for the locks. It will be connected with the main channel above and below the dam. At the other lock locations this will not be necessary.

PACKAGE FREIGHT PROVES BOON TO THE SMALL TOWN MERCHANT

Chicago's System, With 2,500 Cars Going Out Daily, Keeps the Country Dealer Abreast of the Times.

Chicago's package freight system, by which small-town merchants, particularly in the South and Southwest, are kept abreast of the times, has been developed to 2,500 cars a day.

Chicago package freight plays an important part in the life of the small community. The flapper there has the latest seasonal styles just as soon as her cousins on the Boul Mich. The town Beau Brummel no longer is five or six months behind the city man in the cut of his clothes.

It is of inestimable value to country merchants in more ways than one. It helps them make satisfied customers and satisfied customers help to build up business.

Through the Association of Commerce, in co-operation with the railroads and shippers, Chicago has developed this package freight car system by which all consignments to a given point are consolidated so that Chicago, with the world's greatest transportation facilities and the market place of 50,000,000 people within a night's ride, is the logical pivot for such a freight scheme. Thirty-nine railroads, including 25 great systems, terminate here. This represents 40 per cent of the railroad mileage of the United States. Fourteen belt line railroads, comprising 1,400 miles of track, one-third of the total belt mileage of the United States, make connections between the great trunk lines.

Chicago's 2,500 package freight cars daily go to 1,800 shipping points in 40 states, from which 60,000 other points can be reached with one transfer.

The value of Chicago's package freight shipments runs into millions of dollars daily. There are no accurate records because a package car is filled with a large range of goods. A package of silk may be worth $1,000.00, delays in transfer are avoided. This also minimizes damage to goods in otherwise repeated handling.

Preparing Package Freight for Shipment in Chicago Dry Goods House.

Before the days of this system less than carload shipments went out in a haphazard sort of way and the merchant in Waco, Tex., or some other such point, considered himself lucky if the piano he ordered for Christmas arrived some time around Easter. Now he gets it in five days.

This merchandise service is the result of years of study of the needs of the small-town merchant and a thorough analysis of the country's vast network of rail transportation. By way of illustration of what had to be overcome it may be stated that there are more than 200 different ways of routing freight from Chicago to Charlotte, N. C., but only one route has a through package car to Charlotte.

It required several years of study to determine the quickest and most economical route to this point. Test shipments were made over many of the 200 different routes, and in some instances shippers' representatives or representatives of the Association of Commerce freight traffic bureau made personal inspections.

The "Lantern Cooler's" Profession.
Among the theatrical agencies where talent is to be employed for all occasions a new calling is that of "lantern cooler." What is meant is that at some small movie shows a variety turn is put on between the reels whilst the projector recovers from a passionate six-reel film.

but a package of the same size containing tinware only $10.00. From 500 to 400 packages are put in one car, depending on the size.

In trying to arrive at a rough estimate of the value of the 2,500 daily cars of package freight, one expert hazarded a guess of $25,000.00 per car. That would be $62,500,000.00 a day. Another put it at $1,000.00 a car, or $2,500,000.00 a day. By striking a general average between these figures, the daily shipment would amount to more than $30,000,000.00.

The chief advantages of through package freight are in the saving of time and the condition of goods at destination. Many claims for damage, loss and delays are avoided.

Chicago's system has reached such a fine stage of development that it can beat St. Louis in her own territory in the matter of service. There are many places in Texas to which, by correct routing, Chicago is able to overcome other advantages of the St. Louis market. For example, shipments to Laredo, Amarillo and El Paso, Tex., can be made in less time from Chicago than from St. Louis.

The Den Man.

Interesting Facts 106,327 Ford Cars and Trucks Retail- ed in November

Approximately the same number scheduled for delivery this month

What Does This Mean?

This volume of deliveries to actual owners is entirely unprecedented for this time of the year—

It has taxed the manufacturing ability of the Ford plants working at full capacity—

It indicates a volume of business during the rapidly approaching months of "heavy demand" which will be far beyond the maximum production schedule which the Ford Motor Company has set—

And that means a Ford shortage even more acute than the one which existed last Spring and Summer.

Dealers stocks all over the country are low there are no reserves to draw upon to meet the demands for delivery—

There is no way in which dealer reserves can be built up, as deliveries have been made to customers as fast as Cars could be manufactured since last April.

The only way you can protect your desire to obtain prompt delivery of a Ford even at this time is to place your order immediately.

This emphasizes more strongly than anything we could possibly say the necessity of your making prompt arrangements with a Ford Dealer for the listing of your order, particularly if you are contemplating the purchase of a Ford Car or Truck for use this Spring or Summer.

We believe you are entitled to know these facts as they actually exist.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

KEEPING IN TUNE

TO AVOID an occasion for unhappiness, for dull days and dreary nights, we should do our best to keep in tune with the "Music of the Spheres."

The tuneful people, the people with songs on their lips and smiles in their eyes are the people who manifest the keenest interest in things around them and take a daily part in doing the world's work.

The secret of their continued content is in employment, change of thought, the right sort of physical and mental activity, which make them oblivious to the jarring discords around them.

The still pool becomes stagnant. So does the dormant mind.

There is bewitching music and exhilarating thrill in the bubbling waters of the crystal brook; there is never a note of gladness in the idle mind, where discontent holds sway and dismal forebodings darken the beams of day.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

THINGS WORTH DOING

IT IS easy to sit and watch others work. But we know of no employer who will pay you wages for doing it, unless you know how to do the work yourself and are working hard at the job of supervising it.

It is easy to travel about the world on steamships and parlor cars; very pleasant and profitable to the man with an inquiring mind.

But that is a vacation occupation, and unless you have earned the money to do it by hard work you will get little out of it.

It is easiest of all to feel sorry for yourself and to think that you haven't had a fair chance in life, and that you'd have been a big success if you hadn't met with so much injustice and bad treatment.

But that will get you only unhappiness, which is the least desirable thing in all the world.

There are many things in life that are well worth doing, but none of them are easy.

The first-class fiction writer takes delight in his job, but he also works at it, harder than any man who is not a first-class fiction writer ever dreams of doing.

The great tenor finds pleasure in his job and incidentally in the money he gets from it.

But he works about six or seven hours a day at a time, and in earlier life he worked ten or twelve hours, receiving far less pay for exactly as good music.

If good jobs were to be had by little effort practically everybody would have a good job. The reason that they are so few, and that so many of those few are not filled, is that all of them demand the hardest kind of hard work, not only to get but to keep them.

Genius, which is said to know how to do things before it is born, has to work just as hard as mediocrity to gain and keep success.

Nothing you can think of that brings real rewards can be accomplished without more work than most the brightest day and dull the voice of greeting friends.

Men and women who keep in tune scatter their sunshine wherever they go, and perhaps without knowing it. Though always occupied, they find time to smile, to help the unfortunate and to console the ill. They decline to air their virtues, refuse to worry, carry close to their hearts the priceless vial of faith and never run away from the battle.

They contrive to love, respect and co-ordinate, and thus they keep in harmony with their fellow kin by being sympathetic, friendly and helpful.

They accept honorable defeat as a form of victory, content with the glorious, courageous virtue of faith, in which they find their greatest consolation when the discordant noises of the world beat all around them.

Ever seeking the brighter things, they discover in them their own happiness and the knack of imparting it to others, which, after all that is said and done, is the explanation of keeping the world attuned to Nature's grand diapason which gives to life its sweetest laughter, songs and blessings.

Keeping in tune is not difficult for those who keep the faith, for even in their darkest hours they seldom strike a wrong key or miss a measure of their joyous song.

WEALTH

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE'S wealth enough for all of us.

If wealth we want to win,
Just waiting for the call of us,
For men to gather in—
Enough to have, enough to hold,
And wealth enough to share,
For weak and strong, young and old,
Just waiting everywhere!

There's friendship for beginning with

A golden joy, a friend;
For what's the use of winning with
No comrade at the end?
So find a comrade heart and mind,
They come so easily—
For all you need a friend to find
Is just a friend to be!

And there's a wealth that's nearer yet,

A love that's near you now,
There's some one closer, dearer, yet
To whom you made a vow,
The love of husband, love of wife,
No purer gold is found—
So gather love to light your life,
It's waiting all around!

The wealthy are not many, one

Who calls a million his;
But wealth will come to anyone
Who knows just what it is.
For wealth is happy heart and mind
It's laughter, love and song—
And, at the last, the only kind
That you can take along!

U. S. TAKES STEPS TO HALT FRENCH

Cannot View With Favor Use of Army as a Debt Collector.

SEEKS A PEACEFUL SOLUTION

Yanks to Remain on the Rhine for the Present—Washington Eager to Be of Service to France.

Washington, Jan. 9.—Officials of this government express complete satisfaction with the steps taken by it to obviate the impending resort to coercive measures by France to enforce its reparations demands on Germany.

The American government has clearly and fully informed its French and other European friends that it cannot view with favor the employment of military as a debt collector, and even yet hopes that such a step may be avoided.

President Harding's administration will keep the American troops on the Rhine for the present, despite the Reed resolution passed by the senate calling for their immediate withdrawal.

The United States, it was said at the State department, wishes to avoid withdrawing the American detachment under circumstances which would create any "implication" that this government was taking sides in a European controversy.

The representatives of France and Germany have not been permitted to entertain the slightest doubt on either point nor to question the sincerity of American ambition to make available at any time its services to prevent further demoralization and disruption of existing peace conditions in both France and Germany.

U. S. GIVES INDEMNITY PLAN

Negotiations Are Begun With France Concerning a Commission of Experts.

Washington, Jan. 9.—A detailed plan for formation of a commission of experts to determine Germany's ability to pay reparations, the decision of this commission to be the basis for a future allied agreement on reparations, has been laid before the French government, it was officially stated at the State department.

Baptist Preaches as Presbyterian. New York, Jan. 9.—The Presbytery of New York supported by an overwhelming majority the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, a Baptist, who is the "special preacher" at the First Presbyterian church.

Kilauea Volcano Active. Hilo, T. H., Jan. 9.—Park Commissioner Boies reports more activity in the Kilauea volcano than for many months. Fountains of lava are shooting to a great height from two lakes in the volcano.

SCHOOL DAYS

of us can contemplate without getting tired at the mere thought of it.

Yet people are doing it right along, and you seldom hear of any of them killing themselves in the effort.

If you have made up your mind to do something unusual or to be somebody of importance, learn how to work twice as hard as you ever did before. That is only a first step. The second is to think hard. If you can do both, and keep them up long enough, you may land, but remember you will have a lot of competition. Even hard work finds plenty of men to believe in and practice it. And most of them get what they are after.

White Loaf Cake.

Cream one-half cupful of butter with one cupful of granulated sugar, add one-half cupful of milk with one and one-quarter cups of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two-thirds of a cupful of raisins, one-third of a cupful of sliced citron, both well floured; add a teaspoonful of almond extract and fold in the stiffly beaten white of an egg.

Boiled Dressing.

Take three or four whole eggs, beat until light, add an equal measure of mild vinegar and place over hot water to cook, beating with an egg beater until smooth and thick. Set away in the ice chest and add such seasonings as desired when serving. Butter, cream, salt, mustard, red pepper and paprika with chopped vegetables and chili sauce will make a dozen different dressings from this recipe.

Suedoise Dressing.

Take one cupful of mayonnaise dressing, two tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish, two tablespoonfuls of chopped shallot, one teaspoonful of chopped capers, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one-half tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, one-half tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water, one-half cupful of stiffly beaten cream. Mix ingredients in the order given, adding the cream at the last.

HOW THE STORAGE BATTERY OPERATES

Operator Must Guard Against an Excessive Rate of Charge or Discharge.

It is possible to form the plates of a lead storage battery by immersing lead plates in a 20 per cent solution of sulphuric acid and continuously going through the charging and discharging process. However, this is a long and tedious process to get oxide of lead on the positive plates by means of numerous charging and discharging cycles. The oxide, which is the active material, is manufactured chemically and applied to the plates.

The body of manufactured plates is cast from lead in such a manner as to leave the surface honeycombed. In this honeycombed surface of the plates is forced a paste, formed by mixing litharge-lead-oxide with sulphuric acid. After the plates are assembled with separators between them are placed in containers in an electrolyte consisting of a 20 per cent solution of sulphuric acid. The lead body of a storage battery plate simply acts as a holder or container for the active material. The active materials in a lead storage battery are the lead peroxide on the positive plate, the sponge lead of the negative plate and the sulphuric acid electrolyte.

When a storage battery is discharging, that is, while a current is being drawn from it, a chemical action takes place in the battery. The lead peroxide of the positive plate and the sulphuric acid of the electrolyte react to form lead sulphate and water. Acid is more dense than water, so that when fully charged the electrolyte has a density of 1.275 to 1.300, which means that the electrolyte is 1.275 to 1.3 times as heavy as an equal volume of water. As the battery is discharged and water is formed by the chemical action, the electrolyte becomes less dense. Finally, when the density drops to 1.00 to 1.150, the battery reaches a point when charging is necessary. Thus the density of the electrolyte is a measure of how much energy, or how fully charged the battery is.

The voltage of a battery is also an indication of the degree of charge. A fully charged battery should have an open circuit voltage of 2.2 volts per cell.

The voltage per cell should not be allowed to drop below 1.8 before recharging.

When a storage battery is put on charge, a direct current is forced through the battery. The chemical reaction that takes place during the charging process is just the reverse of that which takes place during the process of discharging. That is to say, the lead sulphate and water formed during the discharge are converted back into lead peroxide and sulphuric acid. The formation of sulphuric acid during the charging process causes the density of the electrolyte to increase. The density of the electrolyte of a fully charged battery is between 1.275 and 1.300, while the open circuit voltage per cell is about 2.2.

Of course, a storage battery is not 100 per cent efficient, which means that the total ampere hours delivered to the battery during the charging period will always exceed the total ampere hours drawn from the battery during the discharge period. The voltage per cell and the specific gravity of the electrolyte are the criterion of the degrees of charge in the battery. However, due to the fact that some of the lead sulphate is not readily converted into lead peroxide and sulphuric acid, it is necessary at times to give the battery an overcharge. That is, the charging current should be allowed to flow after the battery has reached the charged condition, until after several hours of constant charging, there is no increase in the voltage per cell or the density of the electrolyte.

The value of the charging current is determined by the manufacturers and should not be exceeded. An excessively high charging current will cause an increase in the rate of deterioration of the plates. Every time a battery is charged or discharged a certain amount of active material on the plates crumbles and drops to the bottom of the cell.

Assuming the same operating conditions, the life of a storage battery is a certain number of charges and discharges. An excessive rate of charge or discharge will cause the battery to heat, buckle the plates, and result in an abnormal amount of crumbling of the active material. In the extreme case of a short circuit, the plates of the battery might be buckled to such an extent that an internal short circuit is formed in the battery. To guard against short circuits it is well when using a lead plate storage battery to install a fuse in both battery leads right near the terminals of the battery. Don't under any condition spark the battery by placing a pair of pliers or a screw driver across the terminals. This will eventually ruin the battery.

The water will evaporate out of the electrolyte of a battery and should be replaced. Always add enough distilled water to keep the electrolyte at least a quarter of an inch above the plates in each cell. Should it become necessary to clean out the cells at any time, measure the specific gravity of the old electrolyte. By doing this no false readings of electrolyte density confound the tester as to the condition of the newly cleaned battery.

When using a storage battery in connection with a radio receiver allow the battery to stand a time just after being charged before it is placed in use. Otherwise the unstable condition of the voltage will cause disagreeable noises in the head phones caused by the varying amplification of the tubes.

GROWTH OF RADIO INDUSTRY

Between Two and Three Million Fans Have Bought and Installed Receiving Sets.

A little more than a year ago many of the old established manufacturers of radio apparatus were wondering how they would dispose of their stock. Many dealers were just making a bare living at selling radio apparatus. Just about 300,000 radio amateurs scattered throughout the United States constituted the field for sales of radio goods and apparatus.

Since then a great change has taken place. Radio has come upon the country as a tide. Old apparatus, instruments manufactured under patents 15 years old, ordinary double slide crystal detector sets were becoming immensely popular.

It is said that there are almost 600 incorporated manufacturers of radio apparatus in the United States today. It is impossible to estimate the number of dealers. There are some two or three million fans who have bought and installed radio receiving sets.

These sets receive music and other broadcast matter from some 500 or more broadcasting stations located in every state in the Union. Every state but one has one or more stations, and some states have as many as 20.

With the establishment of more solid radio regulations, with the advent of fair competition and intelligent manufacture of radio apparatus of good design the infant radio baby is growing lustily.

Select Receiving Set Carefully.

When making a purchase, ask the dealer to show you the inside of the set. If all connections are not soldered the wires will become loose and reception will be impossible. Paste or acid, if spread carelessly over the wiring, or dirt inside the receiving box will cause trouble. If filings have been allowed to get into the telephone receiver, the attraction of the magnets will gradually cause them to make their way through the insulation and render the phones worthless. Watch out for these difficulties and avoid the disappointment that comes when a radio enthusiast gets all set to listen in, but can't.

Schools Compete in Radio.

New Jersey public educational institutions have hit upon the idea of competition among the various schools and grades in the construction of radiophone sets. Thus far more than 4,000 complete sets, some of them of the more complicated nature, have been turned out in the schools. The authorities say that boys are learning more through wireless about electricity, circuits, batteries, the telephone and other than any textbook could ever teach.

Reason for Short Wiring.

The reason that you are urged to use short wiring and right-angle turns in connecting a set is a simple one. Every wire carrying an electric current has a magnetic field; if two wires are placed near each other they will absorb current, but if placed at right angles they will oppose each other which is just what they should do. If you run the wires long, they will, of course, meet with other long leads and there will be adverse induction.

Condensers Allow Variation.

Owners of receivers using spiderweb inductance coils of fixed position are restricted to a particular wave length, and even if the coils are mounted for coupling, the range is still limited unless variable condensers are used. The best arrangement is to place one variable condenser in series with the primary and shunt another across the secondary. This affords results equal to those obtainable with a variocoupler.

BIG STATION FOR HOLLAND

During the late war Holland was cut off from all direct cable communication with her colonies. In order to avoid possible repetition she is to establish a very powerful radio station at Kootwyk equipped with apparatus to reach as far as Java, 7,500 miles.

Wireless Invades Arctic.

Wireless has invaded the Arctic territory, a powerful radio station having been established on the Norwegian island of Jan Mayen. It communicates with Norwegian, English and Swedish meteorological stations and was designed for service to sealing and whaling vessels that put in at Jan Mayen.

Government Has Ten Stations.

The federal government now maintains ten broadcasting stations for the purpose of sending out crop and market news.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Chicago Daily Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Announces

A BIG REDUCTION IN SUBSCRIPTION RATES

For the Benefit of Readers Receiving The Tribune By Mail

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, realizing that its phenomenal success is due in a large measure to the fact that for seventy-five years it has numbered among its readers a large proportion of the residents of farms and small cities who receive The Tribune by mail, announces for their benefit a big reduction in subscription rates effective January 15th, 1923.

The reduction ranges from 1/3 to 1/2 below former rates

In 1917, as a war measure, Congress passed a bill providing for four annual raises in Postal Rates for newspaper subscriptions. As The Tribune had, for many years before, sold its paper to out-of-town readers at less than cost, it felt compelled to add a portion of these postage increases to its subscription rates.

For the past three years The Chicago Tribune has been leading the fight to obtain a reduction in second-class postage rates so that it could reduce to pre-war prices its subscription rates to residents of farms and small cities.

Although every one of the other ten taxes established by the war revenue act of 1917 has been reduced, Congress has not seen fit as yet to reduce the tax on second-class postage.

At the present Postal Rates it costs The Tribune from $3.20 to $6.79 a year for Postage alone to send the paper to each subscriber in the States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. In many instances this is more than The Tribune's entire subscription price—without considering the cost of the product.

Many of our farmer friends have stated that it required from 10 to 12 bushels of corn to pay for a year's subscription to The Chicago Daily Tribune. The Tribune is anxious to remedy that fact.

TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OFFER TEAR OUT COUPON and MAIL AT ONCE!

If you prefer to do so, you may turn subscription coupon below over to your postmaster, publisher, or newsdealer who will forward it to us.

Therefore, without waiting further for Congress to act, The Tribune announces a reduction in subscription rates ranging from 1/3 to 1/2. This cut in rates will cost The Tribune approximately $200,000.00 each year, but The Tribune will pay the bill in the interest of its many country readers.

New subscriptions to The Chicago Daily Tribune, starting on and after January 15th, 1923, will be accepted at the following rates:

THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE

These Rates Apply Only to Subscriptions in States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. (Cities, Towns and Rural Routes included.)

3 Months.....	2.50.....	1.25
6 Months.....	3.75.....	2.50

The Chicago Daily Tribune today enjoys the largest circulation in its history and the largest morning circulation in America—averaging over 530,000 copies daily. It will readily be seen, therefore, that the reduction is not made primarily to secure more circulation.

If you wish to receive The Chicago Daily Tribune—with its many wonderful features—regularly, take advantage of these new, low rates now. Mail subscription coupon below. Note that $2.50 will now bring you The Chicago Daily Tribune by mail for six months, or $5.00 for a whole year.

50,000,000 FISH TO BE PUT INTO ILLINOIS WATERS ANNUALLY

Laying Corner Stone for New Hatchery in Chicago.

Fifty million fish will be put into the lakes and streams of Illinois annually as a result of the building of a new fish hatchery and aquarium in Lincoln park, Chicago, the corner stone for which has just been laid.

Wisconsin entertains about 400,000 fish fans from outside of the state each year. According to the Wisconsin Conservation commission, these fish fans spend from $7,000,000 to $10,000,000 there during the fishing season. A large part of this is Illinois money. The building of the new fish hatchery is the first step toward keeping at home the money now spent in Wisconsin, and at the same time increasing the food supply for the masses.

As Mayor William Hale Thompson laid the corner stone, "slinging the mud" he called it, more than five hundred enthusiastic Chicagoans looked on with approval.

In addition to the mayor, speakers at the corner stone laying included G. A. Dahlberg, speaker Illinois house of representatives; William H. Stuart, president Fish Fans' club; J. Clifford McCauley; William H. Wesbey, superintendent of Lincoln park.

"This is the greatest thing ever started in the interest of fishing, good health and cheap food," said Mayor Thompson. "Every true angler, every disciple of Izaak Walton, should come to this organization in the interest of sport and food for the people. While we will advocate the erection and extension of public hatcheries, it is our idea that wealthy persons can be persuaded to erect private hatcheries to a combined total which will be far greater than the public hatcheries.

"More than anything else the opportunity for the propagation of food fish appeals to me. Salmon were caught off the Chicago shore this year, and the great catch of sturgeon we made on the occasion of our trip to New Buffalo, Mich., last June, demonstrates the possibilities for food fish. Recently, I am informed, a 250-pound sturgeon was caught off the mouth of the Chicago river."
